The Global Resource for Nutrition Practice

In celebration of Nutrition Month, the Health Sciences Library is hosting a free webinar demo of the PEN \(Practice-based Evidence in Nutrition\) Database on Friday, March 16 at 12PM.

PEN is a dynamic knowledge translation tool providing healthcare practitioners with ready access to timely, current and authoritative guidance on food and nutrition and offering evidence-based answers to questions encountered in every day practice.

To request a link to the webinar contact hslibrary@smh.ca, or participate in-person on Friday March 16 at 12PM in the Computer Lab (LKS 353). Visit www.pennutrition.com to access the PEN Database today.

NEW! Systematic & Scoping Review Search Policy

Due to high demand and the importance of systematic and scoping reviews, a new policy is underway to support research teams in planning and conducting systematic and scoping reviews. The policy will ensure the provision of search services is standardized and on par with colleagues at similar institutions supporting health sciences research.
